DAVIS PAVING PLAN PASSES

BIDS CAN'T BE ASKED UNTIL AFTER 17 DAYS

WABASH IS TECHNICAL

Contract Permitting City to Install Water Pipes is Rejected as Too Binding

The resolution for the paving of Davis street between First and Cooper streets was finally passed by the City Council last night. The proposal will be advertised for seven days, after which there will be ten days in which property owners can file remonstrances. Bids cannot be asked until after that time.

The Davis street paving is to be of the same type as that on Walnut street, of seven-inch concrete and twenty feet wide. From Cooper to First street is three blocks.

The council also passed the ordinance providing for a walk on the east side of lot 4, block 15, Charles First addition, 132 feet on Hester street between Cooper and Edwards. This ordinance will lie for ten days before it becomes effective, after which bids will be asked.

A contract with the Wabash railroad to permit the laying of a new water main or mains beneath the Wabash tracks, between the city and the pumping plant, again was rejected by the Council.

Negotiations between the city and railroad company have been in progress for some time. According to Mayor W. O. Garrett, similar negotiations with the Burlington railroad required but a few days and that company did not require the formality of a contract. The Wabash, according to Mayor Garrett, has been extremely technical.

The contract which the council rejected last night provides that the main shall be laid "in such manner and at such time" as shall meet with the approval of the Wabash chief engineer or his representative. Despite such supervision, it then provides that the city shall "at all times protect, indemnify and save harmless the first party from and against all claims, demands, judgments, losses, costs, liabilities and expenses for injury to or death of or damage to the property of any person or persons whomsoever, including both parties hereto and theid employes, in any manner arising from or growing out of the installation, maintenance, repair, existence, use or removal of said water mains or the subsidence of the soil of the same."

The contract also provides for the installation of two eight-inch pipes, whereas the city may wish to install a twelve-inch line.

He will discuss the results of this course and seek new ideas in his conversation with Doctor Germane, who is co-author of the Germane and Germane textbook on "Silent Reading."

Issues Proclamation for Arbor Day in State

Jefferson City, March 16.—Governor Baker issued a proclamation today designating Friday, April 9, as arbor day, and urged all citizens of Missouri to observe the day by beautifying their homes and grounds and contributing to the fruitfulness of the land by the planting of shade and fruit trees, flowers and shrubs.

The proclamation called attention to the teachers in the public schools to the state statutes relative to arbor day and urged that the afternoon of the day be devoted to the improvement and ornamentation of the school grounds throughout the state.

PAROLED MAN AGAIN IN JAIL

ROBERT L. CRISWELL OF MAITLAND HELD HERE

STOLE FROM AUTOS

Confessions of Three Young Relatives Also Implicate Him in Chicken Stealing

Robert L. Criswell of Maitland was arrested late yesterday and is now in the county jail here on charge of stealing chickens, lap robes and horse blankets. Criswell has not been arraigned at a late hour this afternoon.

The arrest of Criswell was caused by the confessions of his brothers-in-law, Russell, Otha and Elvis Allen, who were picked up yesterday by deputy sheriffs in Council Bluffs, Ia., and charged with a series of car strippings and tire thefts. The boys admitted the thefts and implicated Criswell.

Two detectives from Omaha, George Townley and A. R. Pramer, visited the Criswell home yesterday and recovered some of the lap robes and blankets. Criswell was turned over to Sheriff Lowell B. Campbell at Burlington Junction last night.

Criswell, who is 27 years, is on parole from the district court at Council Bluffs, where he was sentenced to ten years for burglary and larceny. On or about December 24, 1925, it is declared, Criswell, with the Allen boys, ranging in ages from 21 to 17, drove to Burlington Junction in Criswell's car and stole five lap robes and two horse blankets from cars parked at the church in that town. On that same night about 11 o'clock, the party visited the home of Everett Miller and stole seventeen white chickens. These chickens were taken to the Criswell home and kept there until about Dec. 26, when Criswell sold them to Lawrence Talbott at Graham.

Sheriff Campbell had been after Criswell and sent Deputy Frank Burchett of Graham to his place yesterday afternon but Burchett arrived a little after the detectives had left with Criswell. Criswell was a witness before the grand jury here in October.

Choir's Engagement Here Is Cancelled

Because Of Conflict In Dates, Concert By Lincoln, Neb., Organization Will Not Be Given At This Time.

Because of a conflict in dates, the engagement of the Lincoln, Neb., A Cappella choir in Maryville Friday night has been canceled by the Wesleyan Bible class of the First Methodist Church, under whose auspices the entertainment was to have been given. The concert was first announced for Saturday night but upon learning yesterday that the choir was scheduled to appear in St. Joseph on the same date the time here was advanced to Friday night.

Word came this morning that the choir was to appear in St. Joseph on both Friday and Saturday nights. After a talk with John M. Rosborough, conductor, by telephone this morning, the local society decided to cancel the engagement here at this time.

LESS SCHOOL AID, SAYS LEE

RURAL DIRECTORS IN THIS COUNTY WARNED.

NEW DRAINS ON FUND

State Superintendent Cites Several Factors Which Will Cut Per Capita Apportionment.

Nodaway County's schools cannot count upon as much state aid as they did last year, according to information received by Lesslie G. Somerville, county superintendent of schools, from Charles A. Lee, state superintendent.

The state superintendent states that he is furnishing data early in order that the school boards of the county can be appraised before they prepare their notices for the April election and can more accurately determine the levy necessary to maintain their schools.

The money which the state auditor estimates will be available to apportion to the public schools of the state in August, 1926, according to Mr. Lee, is as follows:

The Money Available.

Amount transferred to school funds from July 1, 1925 to February 1, 1926, $1,272,866.11; estimated transfer for next 5 months, $2,265,000.00; total, $3,537,866.11. Interest on school fund certificates, $187,040.00; total, $3,724,906.11. Amount to be paid out before June 30, 1926, which was appropriated out of school moneys by Legislature, $630,000.00. Estimated balance for distribution June 30, 1926, $3,094,906.11.

"This is $124,257.24 less than we had for distribution June 30, 1925, based upon the estimate of the State Auditor," says Mr. Lee. "He has asked me to say this is only an estimate and that it simply represents his judgment.

Less Per Day Attendance.

"Upon first thought one might conclude each district will receive the same for days attendance as was apportioned last year which was 0.008222141. However, it will not be safe to count on receiving as much as eight mills a day attendance for the following reasons:

"1. There will be several newly formed consolidated districts which will draw from the funds.

"2. The law granting state aid to districts where orphans are educated is now in effect. It was not operative when the last apportionment was made.

"3. The number of teachers will be greater, calling for a larger apportionment for teacher quota.

"4. Slightly declining valuations allow more rural districts to apply and receive money as rural aid each year.

"5. Doubtless more schools will apply under Section 15, H. B. 352, commonly called Job Law.

"6. More schools are establishing opportunity rooms each year, for which the state apportions money.

"All of these must be deducted before the amount left to be distributed for days' attendance can be determined."

The spokesman said the protest would arouse a new wave of agitation against the unequal treaties concerning China.

DUNINI TAKES TOTAL BLAME

FORMER FASCIST LEADER ABSOLVES FOUR OTHERS.

400 PAGES EVIDENCE

Death Of Deputy Giacomo Matteotti In June, 1924, Caused World-Wide Interest.

Chieti, Italy, March 16.—Amerigo Dumini, a former Fascist leader, today shouldered alone the responsibility for the death of Deputy Giacomo Matteotti, for whose murder he is now on trial here with four others.

Dumini, who claims he was born in St. Louis, took the witness stand in his own defense shortly after the long-deferred trial opened and immediately absolved the others charged with him for the death of Matteotti.

"I wish to state definitely that none of my present companions on trial here with me were with me on June 10 when Matteotti died," said Dumini dramatically. "His kidnapping was completely on my own initiative."

Dumini said he went to Paris to investigate an alleged anti-Fascist and Socialist plot. These investigations, he said, led him to the conclusion that Matteotti had inspired the murder of Secretary Bonseruizi in Paris in 1924.

The crime was committed on June 10, 1924, the day before the murdered deputy was scheduled to make an address in the chamber of deputies in which he was expected to disclose financial irregularities of the Fascist regime.

The transcript of the evidence is contained in 400 closely typewritten pages and took the examining magistrates and experts over a year in its compilation.

The death of Matteotti caused a storm of protest throughout the country. The press was occupied for months giving grim accounts and gruesome details on how the assassination was perpetrated. It was charged by the newspapers opposed to Fascism that the murder was political and that men in the government were involved. To the insistent demands of the public and a considerable group in his own party, Prime Minister Mussolini gave the solemn assurance that justice would be done and the guilty brought to trial.

According to the testimony gathered by the examining magistrates, Deputy Matteotti was seized by a gang of men on June 10, near his home on the Tiber. He had just left his wife before entering the house and had gone back to buy a package of cigarettes. The gang rushed him into an automobile and fled into the Roman campagna.

The next day, Signora Matteotti reported to the Rome police authorities that her husband was missing. The police confessed to know nothing. Socialist deputies interpellated Mussolini in the chamber of deputies on the fate of the missing deputy. The premier reported that there was no information at hand. They mystery increased. No trace could be found of the victim's whereabouts.

Expect Insurgents to Battle for Brookhart

Protracted Political Conflict Is Seen—House Committee Approves Bill for Reorganizing Dry Forces.

Washington, March 16.—A protracted political battle will be waged in the Senate by the progressive bloc to save the seat of Senator Smith W. Brookhart, Republican of Iowa, it was learned today following a report of the Senate elections sub-committee recommending the unseating of Brookhart and the seating of Daniel F. Steck, his Democratic opponent.

Washington, March 16.—The treasury's bill for reorganization of prohibition forces to make enforcement more effective was approved today by the House Ways and Means committee.

The bill, which would establish separate bureaus of prohibition and customs, was framed by General L. C. Andrews, prohibition enforcement chief.

What League Dispute is About

The dispute at Geneva, which threatens the existence of the League of Nations, centers in Germany's admittance both to the assembly and council. The league's "ruling group" is the council, which has four permanent and six nonpermanent members at present.

The permanent council members are the British empire, Italy, France and Japan.

The nonpermanent members are Uruguay, Braxil, Czecho-Slovakia, Sweden, Spain and Belgium.

Admittance of Germany to the league and council was among the agreements reached between the allies and Germany at the Locarno conference. Afterwards, however, France suggested that Poland be admitted to the inner circle at the same time. In this way France would have an ally to staunchly support the French position in league affairs. Germany objected to such a procedure, saying it could not agree to any proposals until actually a member of the council. Herr Stresemann, head of the German delegation, further said the league was attempting to use the issue of Germany's admittance as an excuse to solve some of the league's pressing political problems.

The latest compromise suggested is by the Swedish and Czecho-Slovakian delegates, who propose that their countries withdraw their candidacies for re-election to the council next September, thus making it possible to elect Poland to one of the vacancies.

LABOR NOT IN LIQUOR FIGHT

A. F. L. PRESIDENT SAYS IT WILL TAKE NO STAND.

TO STAY INDEPENDENT

Policy In Next Campaign Will Be To Oppose Unfriendly Candidates, Says Green.

St. Louis, March 16.—The American Federation of Labor will take no definite stand in the next Congressional election on the prohibition issue, William Green, president of the federation declared here today. Green is here to speak tonight at a dinner given by the St. Louis Bar Association.

"Prohibition will be a live issue this year everywhere," President Green said. "Laboring people have positive views on the subject. Personally, it appears to me that if prohibition had been enacted by a gradual process, the result would have been better, but it is not likely that labor will take a definite stand in the coming election with reference to either prohibition or the world court."

Green stated that labor's part in the next election will be to throw its strength against Congressional candidates unfriendly to labor.

"What we will do will be entirely non-partisan. Our particular interest at this time is a bill pending in the House of Representatives which would restrict the manufacture and sale of goods made by convicts in competition with free labor."

J. C. Grimmet Dies at St. Francis Hospital

LEAGUE PUTS GERMANY OFF

ADMISSION IS POSTPONED UNTIL SEPTEMBER.

LOCARNO PACT ASIDE

Leaders Fear to Risk Vote Now.—Brazil and Spain Block Efforts at Compromise.

Geneva, March 16.—Hopelessly deadlocked, the Council of the League of Nations this evening decided to postpone Germany's admission to the League until September.

The action of the Council was taken as a last resort in an effort to save the Locarne treaty.

Brazil has stood steadfastly in her insistence that she would veto Germany's entrance into the League unless a permanent seat was granted Brazil in the Council. Members of the Council thought it better that Germany's entrance be postponed rather than risk an objection being raised to her entrance in an open session of the assembly.

The Locarno treaty may now be laid aside indifinitely but capable of being put into operation when and if Germany enters the League.

Premier Briand and Herr Stresemann today held a lengthy conference on the possibility of adjourning all questions relative to Germany's admission to the League until September.

France and Germany are both anxious to preserve the Locarno treaties and would prefer a postponement of Germany's entrance into the League to the chance of an open fight in the League assembly against Germany's admission.

Geneva, March 16.—Spain joined Brazil today in offering an obstacle to the proposed compromise of the League of Nations dispute.

Spain announced that she would not vote against the admission of Germany to the League of Nations but that if she is not granted a permanent seat in the Council she must carry out her intentions of resigning from the League.

Diplomatic guns are being turned at the Brazilian defense today for only the attitude of Brazil stands in the way of a compromise of the knotty problem of representation in the League of Nations Council which has menaced the future of the League for more than a week. The Brazilian delegate, Melle Franco, has not thus far indicated that he intends to make any deviation from his insistence that Brazil must have a permanent seat on the Council in place of the non-permanent seat she now holds.

E. G. Hancock, Former Candidate For Lieutenant-Governor, Seeks Repeal Of Volstead Act.

A statement attacking Hawes was issued by Hancock here today. He seeks to urge Judge Henry Priest to make the race and threatens if Judge Priest does not run he will be a candidate.

Hancock has not yet filed with the Secretary of State. His paramount issue would be repeal of the Volstead act.

THE ONLY DAILY PAPER IN NODAWAY COUNTY

WHAT'S THE USE?

The Tacna-Arica situation drags on and grows worse. It is a year now since President Coolidge, at the request of Chile and Peru, gave his decision in their territorial dispute. The plebiscite originally contemplated, which he approved, has not been held. Both sides have made trouble. Gen. Pershing, after wearing himself out, came home. His American successor seems able to accomplish nothing. The Tacna-Arica crowds are rioting. Chileans and Peruvians are shooting each other across the border.

Uncle Sam has got to do something. He must either go through with it or get out. It looks to a lot of Americans as if he ought to get out.

Uncle seems to have made a mistake in assuming that the disputing nations wanted a fair settlement. It is evident they don't both want an honest plebiscite, at any rate. So why should Uncle sacrifice himself further in the matter?

There were presumably two reasons for undertaking this service. One was as a favor to Peru and Chile. The other was to avoid any possibility of European intervention, by the League of Nations or otherwise. The dispute itself was of no concern to us.

It is no favor to insist on helping nations that don't want to be helped.

It is very unlikely that the League of Nations, which distinctly recognizes "such regional understandings as the Monroe Doctrine" will butt into this controversy.

Why not back out, as gracefully as possible, with the suggestion that if the disputants cannot agree between themselves, they let other South American powers take a diplomatic hand in the game?

A SECRET MURDER TRIAL.

A Judge is Mississippi, presiding at a murder case, issued an order prohibiting publication of the details of the trial, declaring that he would jail for contempt any newspaper reporter who made public any of the trial testimony.

Most of the newspaper men thereupon declared that they would "cover" the trial just the same, and proceeded to do so.

There was nothing else for the representatives of a free press to do, in their own interest or in the interest of the public.

Freedom of the press is guaranteed in the Bill of Rights, which is the heart of the United States Constitution. A free press is needed to preserve the rights of a free people. It must necessarily stand up for those rights, even against governmental executives or judges, if it is true to its mission.

Getting the details of a particular murder case before the people may not be important, but preserving the right to tell the people what is going on in the administration of justice is very important. What is done in the public courts is everybody's business. If citizens can be tried for murder—or anything else—in secrecy, whose liberities are safe?

COFFEE AT FIRES.

The Allentown Branch of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Pennsylvania State Firemen's Association has just started something which should win them national renown and the high compliment of imitation. These fire-fighting women are going to equip and operate several motorized coffee wagons which will always follow the engines and the hook-and-ladder truck and will supply hot coffee to the struggling firemen.

The coffee wagon may not always be needed. Trailing the fire department to answer a false alarm or when putting out a small fire on a hot summer day, the coffee service may appear foolish and useless. But used with judgment, it should be a very fine thing. Everyone knows the bracing effect of coffee taken during such a protracted session of hard work as firemen must go through at big conflagrations.

California Woman May Be Chosen Wet Leader

Mrs. Florence P. Kahn Denies She Aspires To Job But She May Be Drafted For It Anyway.

By CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer

Washington — Congresswoman Florence P. Kahn of California emphatically denies that she aspires to leadership of the wet bloc in the House of Representatives.

Maybe she doesn't, but there's such a thing as being drafted.

Mrs. Kahn is being talked about for the job, anyway.

Congressman John Phillip Hill of Maryland is wet leader now, but Hill is figuring on breaking into the Senate.

Besides, some of the wets have an idea there would be strategic advantages in having a woman as their standard bearer, assuming, of course, that she was a capable one, which there isn't any doubt about it in Mrs. Kahn's case.

The popular impression is that women are dryer than men, on an average. A good many of them might be won over, with a woman leading the fight for dry law modification.

So the wets reason.

Mrs. Kahn, by the way, reasons otherwise.

"On the prohibition question," she told me, "women, like men, differ, with localities and groups, but I believe they average about alike, the country over."

Congressman Hill certainly isn't jealous of the talk afout Mrs. Kahn, as wet leader. Indeed, Mrs. Kahn says she thinks he started it, "for a joke," as she puts it.

Mrs. Kahn's unduly modest.

The wets aren't joking.

Capper Terms Poll Only Wet Propaganda

Kansas Senator Contends That Straw Votes Are Part of Beer and Wine Campaign in Country

Washington, March 16—"Propaganda for beer and wines" was the way Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas yesterday described the polls being taken on the Volstead act by many newspapers over the country.

"I was asked by a big newspaper publisher, whose papers long have been advocating the return of beer, to publish the straw votes in my newspapers," the Kansas senator said. "I refused to do so because I recognized as I think everyone else here does, that the concerted movement to publish these straw votes was a part of the campaign of the wets to bring back beer and wine. I do not hesitate to say that is what is behind the polls now being taken."

Senator Capper added he had been asked by one publisher if he would run the straw votes as paid advertising, but he demurred, and the proposition was not pressed.

"I do not believe any Kansas paper is lending itself to this propaganda," said the senator.

So far as any results were concerned, Senator Capper said, there was no chance of "wet" legislation being passed by the present congress. Because of the renewed activity of the wets, there would be a sharp issue on the prohibition question in certain states, but he predicted that the new congress elected next November would be as dry as the present one.

What Other Editors Say

HURRAY, HOUSE FOR PRESIDENT.

Texas has at last awakened to the startling fact that in Col. E. M. House the state has a favorite son and a bang up presidential candidate. Numerous smalltown editors of Texas have joined in launching the Boom, and politicians at Austin have permitted themselves to be quoted as changing their opinion of the Colonel. They thought him a very mediocre fellow whose supreme talent was for looking wise and saying nothing. Now, since reading the Colonel's memoirs, they know the truth.

Why shouldn't Col. House be President? He discovered Woodrow Wilson. He wrote most of Wilson's speeches. He told the Kaiser where to get off, and silenced Margot Asquith. He kept us out of war. He led us into the war. He dictated all the notes to all the foreign Powers during those days of crisis. He kept Wilson from making mistakes. He prevented wily allied diplomats from cheating us of the fruits of victory. He proposed the peace. He made the peace. He was in everything except title the greatest President the United States ever had.

Of course, if one is inclined to doubt some of these statements, we refer him to the Colonel's memoirs. Hurray. House for President! If he fails to make it, then Texas should draft him to be confidential adviser to "Ma" Ferguson, and he can help "Ma" handle her husband.—St. Louis Post-Disptach.

Judge Lightens Term; Negro Doesn't Like It

Chickasha, Okla., March 16 (United Press).—"That's a fine way to double cross a feller," mumbled J. D. Thomas, negro, when he was sentenced to 18 months in the penitentiary on a plea of guilty to a charge of stealing chickens.

"Here you officers agrees to give me two years if I pleads guilt and along comes this judge man and give me 18 months. No sir, I tells you all it ain't fair."

Despite his protests the sentence stands as passed.

Correct weight can be yours

be shapely!

"I DO NOT want to be thin! I just want to be my right weight! I want these hollows filled out. I just want enough firm, plump flesh on my bones to fill out my figure."

Of course you do. You want a figure that you can drape your clothes on—not just hang them on! What's the use of having pretty clothes, if they just hang on you?

And what would you say if you were told you could have the figure you want? A graceful, well rounded body—firm, solid flesh—just enough—just your right weight? You'd be mighty happy, wouldn't you?

Well, then, be happy—because you can have it! Put plenty of red cells in your blood and watch your weight go up to where you want it! That's what's the matter with you! Your blood is impoverished. You need more rich, red blood. S. S. S. is the thing to put red blood in your system. S. S. S. helps Nature build red blood cells by the millions.

You just try S. S. S. and watch how quickly you begin to fill out your clothes. Notice your skin clear of unsightly blemishes—your appetite increase—strength come to flabby muscles and vim and vigor fill your whole system. It's red blood that does it. And S. S. S. surely helps Nature build that red blood.

S. S. S. is sold by all drug stores. The larger bottle is more economical.

Dawes Getting Clubby With the Senate.

BY PAUL R. MALLON.
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

Washington, March 16.—When Vice President Charles G. Dawes first ascended the rostrum of presiding officer of the senate March 4, 1925 and, waving his arms, lectured that body on its rules, the senate laughed to itself and said: "Here is a man that needs some good old fashioned senatorial hazing."

There was hazing for a while and it is still fashionable to poke fun at the vice president whenever possible, but the strained atmosphere between the presiding officer and the upper house is diminishing.

"Dawes is really a fine fellow," one of the so-called "radical" group which fought his nomination as vice president told the United Press correspondent recently. "You'd be surprised. He doesn't pull any of that high-hat stuff and I really think he is for me."

Whether or not Dawes is "for" the senator quoted is questionable, but at any rate he is becoming clubby even with his political opponents.

It has long been a primary principle of the senate, as elsewhere, that honey catches more flies than vinegar. Republicans and Democrats who use every syllable of villefication allowed by parliamentary procedure to describe each other in debate upon the floor often throw their arms about each other and go off in the cloakroom to tell stories when the debate is over. Few take their "politics" so seriously that they deny themselves personal friendships.

It is not unusual now to see Dewes sitting in his room talking to Senator Brookhart, Republican, Iowa, who during the 1924 campaign demanded that Dawes retire as vice presidential candidate. Senator Jim Reed, Democrat Missouri, who has hazed Dawes unmercifully at various times, stops in once in a while for a chat. Dawes often sits in the marble room behind the senate chamber where everyone comes out to smoke and chats with everyone who comes along. Those who are invited to his home for social functions are not confined to "the administration group."

This congress is breaking all records for speed. William Tyler Page, clerk of the House of Representatives since anybody can remember, says that he has never seen the lower body function as thoroughly and with as great precision as during the present session. The senate passed the tax bill and adopted the world court resolution in record time, even if it have to use the threat of cloture in the first instance and exercise it in the latter.

During the first three months of the session the house passed 117 bills of a public and a private nature. The senate passed 93.

Word drifts in to Ohio congressional circles that there is a movement organized in that state to send a woman to the senate. The Democratic executive committee of Cuyahoga county in which Cleveland is situated unanimously adopted recently a resolution endorsing Florence E. Allen of the supreme court in the senatorial nomination.

YOUR INCOME TAX

The revenue act of 1926 provides that the status of a taxpayer relative to the amount of his personal exemptions shall be determined by apportionment in accordance with the number of months the taxpayer was single, married, or the head of a family.

For example, a couple married on September 30, 1925, would be entitled to an exemption of $3,125; that is, 9-12 of $1,500 for the husband while single, plus 9-12 of $1,500 for the wife while single, plus 3-12 of $3,500 for the period during which they were married.

If on June 30, a taxpayer ceased being the head of a family the support in one household of a relative or relatives being discontinued, he is allowed an exemption $2,500, one-half of the exemption of $1,500 granted a single person plus one half of the exemption of $3,500 granted the head of the family. With regard to the $400 credit for a dependent, the taxpayer's status is determined as of the last day of the taxable year. If, during the year, his support of such dependent ceased, he is not entitled to this credit.

Thompson May Seek to Postpone Prison Term

St. Louis Contractor Said to Be Seriously Ill in St. Louis Hospital Where He Underwent Operation.

St. Louis, March 16.—Attorneys for John W. Thompson, St. Louis contractor, sentenced to two years in Leavenworth with Charles R. Forbes in connection with the veterans bureau scandal, may seek to postpone his prison term on a plea of illness.

Thompson is said to be seriously ill in a hospital here where he recently underwent an operation for hernia. His heart action never rallied from the operation, according to physicians.

Banking Next Field For Consolidation

New York Financier Predicts Large Institutions With Number of Branches.

Kansas City, March 16.—The prevailing tendency to consolidate the operation of large units—a tendency which already has affected railroads, public utilities and other industries—is about to include banks, in the opinion of Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank of New York.

Mr. Mitchell, here today on an inspection trip he is making throughout the country, sees a direct trend into branch banking and the operation of financial institutions in large units.

The National City Bank recently has acquired the Peoples Trust Co. of Brooklyn.

"Just as we find a trend in industry and merchandising toward large units," he said, "just so it can be expected in banking."

"Ministers" Involved in Bootlegging Plot

Denver Police Office Learns Pass Word and Man Brings Him Quart Of Whisky.

Denver, March 16.—More than one hundred "ministers" are reposing at the city jail here today.

It all came about when Sergeant George Sellers obtained the password of a bootlegger.

Sergeant Sellers called a number and asked for a minister for a funeral. In a short time, a man arrived with a quart of whisky.

It was later learned that if the buyer wanted wine, he asked for "a preacher for a wedding." If he wanted beer, he asked for "some one to officiate at a baptism," and if he asked for a "red-faced sky pilot," he got moonshine.

To Check Up Revenue From the New Law

Telegraphic Reports From Various Cities Throughout Country Expected To Give Indication Of Amount.

Washington, March 16.—Telegraphic reports were expected at the treasury department late today giving the first indications of the revenue-producing ability of the revenue act of 1926.

Except in cases where fiscal year returns are permitted, all federal tax returns were due in the hands of collectors of internal revenue by last midnight.

Secretary of Treasury Mellon estimated the March collections at from 375 to 425 million dollars, a considerably greater sum than it was originally believed the new law would produce.

The special intelligence unit of the bureau of internal revenue within a week will start an investigation of the incomes of hundreds of persons who failed to file returns. A number of big bootleggers and liquor smugglers are on the list.

Mrs. Burns Ill.

The condition of Mrs. Mahala Burns, who is seriously ill of la grippe at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Earl Henderson on West Fifth street, remains about the same today. Mrs. Burns is 80 years old.

Missouri College Urges Early Oats Seeding

Etheridge Recommends Timely Sowing of Certain Early Varieties.

In planning to produce a good yield of oats in Missouri, the first step should be in avoiding the natural limitations of the climate, says W. C. Etheridge of the Missouri College of Agriculture. Our average growing season for oats lacks the abundance of moisture which helps to produce bumper crops of this grain in the North, but an even more serious short-coming is the season's insufficient length. It ends too soon, giving way abruptly to summer, with the result that the filling of the oats grain is interrupted by drought.

The latter limitation, however, is the very one we can, to a great extent, avoid simply by the use of productive early varieties which, aided by early sowing, will mature safely in the average season. We today have such varieties in Fulghum, Burt, and Kherson, being more fortunate in this respect than were Missouri farmers of fifteen or twenty years ago, who had only late, rank-growing kinds suitable for the long, moist season of the North. Any of the three varieties named will contribute heavily to the success of an oats crop in this State.

Fulghum being the most productive of the lot, deserves special mention. It has been found capable of making larger yields in Missouri than any other variety of oats ever tested by the Missouri Agricultural Experiment Station, and if sown early, in order that its natural vigor and its habit of maturing quickly can utilize the most favorable part of the spring growing season, it will produce a surprisingly good crop. Fulghum has been grown on Missouri farms only during the last few years and consequently is not widely known in this State, but wherever tried it has won the enthusiastic approval of the grower. The general use in Missouri of this fine variety undoubtedly would result in a notable increase in the average yield of the oats crop.

Early seeding is of course an additional means of helping the oats crop beat the season and its practice has a highly beneficial influence upon the yield. The Missouri Experiment Station has in fact demonstrated that in most seasons the yield of oats will decrease regularly and rapidly for each week that seeding is delayed after March 15. Thus the oats sown as early as March 15 often produce double the yield of those sown as late as April 15.

The Fulghum variety, among the desirable ones mentioned, is especially affected by the time of sowing, having shown an average loss of 24 bushels to the acre from a month's delay in getting the seed in the ground.

Kherson is much less affected by delay in putting in the crop; in fact, if the seeding is late, Kherson is somewhat more productive than Fulghum, since it matures earlier and thus is better able to produce a crop within the short time left for growth.

Grace Coolidge Is Best Dressed White House Lady Ever, But She's Economical

By Allene Sumner
NEA Service Writer.

Washington, March 16.—Grace Goodhue Coolidge, first lady of the land for nearly three years, is known to social Washington as "the best dressed woman who has ever graced the White House."

But this doesn't mean Mrs. Coolidge has deserted the cause of Coolidge economy. No president's wife within memory spent as little on her wardrobe as does Mrs. Coolidge. She has solved woman's hardest problem — how to spend little, but be well dressed.

And she makes no bones about it. She even chuckles a bit over the consternation she sometimes sees on the faces of high-hat guests when they see her in a made-over gown at a White House reception.

Dislikes Formality.

Mrs. Coolidge dislikes formal dress of stiff brocades and glittering stuffs. Hundreds of pictures of her have been taken—but rare indeed is the picture showing her in decollette.

"The president doesn't like it," says one picture ageney.

Besides, the expense! This is an economical administration.

Although Mrs. Coolidge is rarely seen without a string of beads of some sort, she does not wear expensive jewels. In fact, it is said that she owns no diamonds but her simple little engagement ring. But she loves earrings.

She is as conservative in dress as her husband is in politics. No matter what the mode, she wears skirts that reach nearly to her ankles. She seldom pays more than $2 for a pair of hose, although she buys large quantities of them, owning hose in a hundred shades to match various costumes.

Looks for Bargains.

When she does her own shopping in one of Washington's specialty shops she is not above picking up a "bargain," a flower from the tray of those "slightly soiled," a "sample" comb or a string of beads.

An incident at a recent glittering White House reception is illuminating. The cream of Washington's society was in the line that moved past her. As the gowned and jeweled women walked up to take her hand, a woman less modishly dressed came up. She was a "society tattler"—a woman who has made her living for years by attending Washington's functions and writing articles about them.

Her eyes were busy as she approached Mrs. Coolidge, trying to note every detail of the first lady's costume. Mrs. Coolidge noticed it. Her eyes sparkled. She leaned forward and whispered:

"You can get the description from some old clippings, Miss ——. It's an old one again. Just made over a little bit."

I know this is a true anecdote, for I heard it myself. I was next in line.

Always Genuine.

White House attaches who have attended countless receptions in many administrations marvel at Mrs. Coolidge's poise. Always she manages to inject real warmth and sincerity into the hundreds of greetings she must give to strangers.

And she seems to enjoy it, too. She almost grins when she comes down the marble stairway into the Blue Room while the Marine band plays "Hail to the Chief." Some of her intimate friends say she has said:

"I rarely go through this act but what I am thinking of the days when my daily promenade consisted of going to market in Northampton with a basket on my arm, while I tried to decide whether to buy steaks or chops for supper."

Another woman, who knew her in the days before she entered the White House, says:

Still Light-Hearted.

"She has refused to be made miserable by the demands put upon her as president's wife. She giggles and chatters as much as in the days when we lived together at the hotel and borrowed one another's ironing board."

Everyone in Washington, in fact, has a good word to say for Mrs. Coolidge. It has been many years since a first lady was as well liked as the present one.

The young woman who comes to the White House to dress her hair is one of her boosters.

"I was scared to death the first time I was called in," she says. "I kept thinking, 'what if I get water down the back of her neck?' But, honestly, I'm not afraid of it at all now. In fact, I did spill some water on her once, and she only laughed and said, 'Do I get a bath, too?'"

The Funny Presents.

A White House attache says:

"She gets a big laugh out of the funny letters people write her and the things they try to give her. And whenever a child tries to send her a guinea pig or a white mouse or a rabbit, she is especially sure that the little letter is answered at once."

Mrs. Coolidge does not give interviews. She did, when she first entered the White House—but she found that the reporters wrote of her only as an economical housewife. And her vanity was a bit hurt.

"They might atleast have remembered that I like music as well as to bake shortcake," she is said to have commented.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Alden of Conception Junction spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Reece and Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Beaver of Elmo.

Conception Junction Firm Files Note Suit

A suit on note and account has been filed in Circuit Court by Proctor and Graham, a Conception Junction firm, against James Dougan. It is alleged that the latter signed a note on March 11, 1920, for $297, due in three months and bearing 7 per cent interest, and that he made two payments on it, one on August 24, 1922, of $50, and the other on January 1, 1924, of $152.05. The suit asks for the amount of the note, together with interest, less the two payments. It also asks for costs, an attorney fee of $75 and a balance of $312.90 for goods declared to have been furnished Dougan in 1924 and 1925.

A PORTFOLIO FROM NIPPON

IS PROPERTY OF TWO GRADES IN SKIDMORE SCHOOL.

CHARACTERISTIC BOOK

Divided Into Several Sections, It Portrays Different Phases Of Japanese Life.

The Nodaway County Red Cross today received a portfolio made by Red Cross Juniors in Koyama School, Isawa County, Iwate Prefecture, Japan. The portfolio is for the third and fourth grades of the Skidmore school, and is in return for a similar article which the Skidmore children prepared and sent to Japan last year.

The portfolio received today is one of the most unique ever sent to this county, according to Mrs. Fern Crull, Junior Red Cross supervisor. One of the most striking things about it is its neatness. Every picture, every card, every drawing, is pasted into the little book with the utmost care.

The portfolio is divided into several sections. The first deals with the nobility of Japan, with a word about each person whose picture is shown. The various notable scenes of the island are pictured in the next section. The third deals with life of the nation, and shows something of the military training. The last section is given over to art work by the Japanese students. It contains drawings which might well be the work of grown-ups, but which were done by boys and girls ranging from 9 to 13 years.

Writing In Japanese.

All of the writing in the portfolio is in Japanese, but Red Cross translators have gone through the book and have written in English as of the Japanese messages.

Two letters accompanied the portfolio. They were written by students of the school, and reflect sound training in the school. The wording of the letters is particularly mature, and the second one reflects a wealth of imagination.

Miss Maud Linville is the teacher of the Skidmore school.

The letters follow:

Praises U. S. Government.

"The name of the United States does not only mean that it represents the leading nation of the world, but it also simultaneously brings to our minds many other things which the name represents, as, for instance, peace and friendship. Having such a concept of your country, you can imagine how very glad we were to receive portfolios from you. We in Japan have nothing of which we can boast, but we members of the Junior Red Cross have arranged this portfolio with some things of interest from our land. We sincerely hope that the work contained will be of interest to you, and that through such contact we may become better friends. We also hope that our respective countries will always be peace-lovink seekers of justice and always willing to do justice.

"When we were suffering from the terrible earthquake in 1923, your country generously gave us both money and supplies, for which we are truly grateful.

Praises Coolidge.

"Not long ago, I read in a newspaper article an incident of some kind deed by President Coolidge. He saved a poor blind man from being run down by an automobile in Washington. It was indeed a kind and noble deed. You are fortunate to have such a president at the head of your government.

"Today and tomorrow, more than ever, the youth will hold sway in all countries of the world. In view of such responsibility, it is our duty to do our best, in what little we can, to make a better world in which to live. It is our mutual duty as future citizens of the world.

"I know that your Junior Red Cross is very successful in its work, and I only hope for greater success."

Signed, Shogo Abe.

One With Imagination.

"Every morning when the sun rises in the east, I have often wondered why it looked so warm and hopeful. It never seems to be tired. At last, I have found the reason. It comes to us after it has sunned and warmed your country; it comes to us after it has been inspired by your country. How I do wish that we could be like that. . . . It is no wonder, then that when we children of Japan see the flags of various nations, that we should be most impressed by your Stars and Stripes.

"Not long ago we received your portfolio. It interested us very much. The work presented was very well done.

"To reach you, this letter must cross waters, rivers, mountains, and valleys. Indeed, it must travel far. Yet, by correspondence, distance can be dispensed with, and we can chat with each other, and thereby become intimate friends. Wishing you unending success."

Signed MISAO ONODERA.

AUNT HET

"My notion is the reason men don't attend church more is because they hate to go that long without smokin'."

MARKET NEWS

Kansas City Stock Yards, March 15, 1926.

Live Stock Prices Lower. Trade Fairly Active.

Cattle were steady to 25 cents lower, hogs steady to 15 cents lower and lambs off 25 cents. Liberal receipts in Chicago accounted for the general decline as other markets had moderate supplies. Feeders in the east central and northern section of the corn belt are marketing fed live stock freely and west central and western feeders will be better off if they do not send shipments east of the Mississippi river. Though declines were general there was no new condition in the situation. Here offerings were absorbed readily as soon as the declines were established.

Today's Receipts.

Receipts today were 13,000 cattle, 12,000 hogs, and 10,000 sheep, compared with 12,000 cattle, 11,000 hogs, and 6,000 sheep a week ago and 17,450 cattle, 8,200 hogs, and 7,525 sheep a year ago.

Beef Cattle.

Trade in fat cattle opened slowly. Chicago came 25 cents lower, and this made it easy for the buying side to reduce prices here 10 to 15 cents, spots more. The extremes in the trade were steady to 25 cents off. The few choice steers offered brought $10 to $10.25 and were quoted steady. Some common steers at $7.50 to $8 were considered steady, but the bulk of the offerings at $8.50 to $9.50, sold 10 to 15 cents lower. Average quality was only fair. Cows and heifers were fully steady and demand was larger than her supply. Choice kinds were unusually scarce. Heifers sold up to $9.50 and cows up to $8. Medium cows brought $5 to $6 and medium heifers $7 to $8. Veal calves were steady, top $12. Bulls were in active demand at strong prices.

Stockers and Feeders.

Receipts of stockers and feeders were small. No cattle arrived from Texas, the first Monday in a number of years past that that state has not been represented in the stocker and feeder division. Prices remained steady.

Hogs.

Hog prices have been on the down grade since Wednesday of last week but today with some kinds only 10 cents lower and others steady it looks like the sagging tendency is about over. Compared with the high point last week quotations are off 65 to 75 cents. The lighter weight classes are scarce, and medium and heavy weights predominate. Today light lights made the top at $13.35; lights $13.25, medium weights $13.05 and heavies $12.50. Bulk of sales ranged from $11.75 to $12.85. Packing sows brought $10.25 to $10.75; stags $9 to $9.75 and stock hogs and pigs $13.25 to $14.10.

Sheep and Lambs.

Lambs broke another 25 cents today and were 50 cents under last weeks high point. Medium and light weight lambs brought $13 to $13.25; strong weights $12.75 to $13 and heavy weights $12 to $12.75. Some Navajo yearlings brought $10.50 and Navajo wethers $9. Shorn lambs are quoted at $10.50 to $11.

Horses and Mules.

Receipts of good horses and mules are still short of demand at strong prices. Plain kinds are selling slowly.

A Dawes Plan For France?

Ira Nelson Morris, President, Uncle Sam's Voters, Washington, D. C.

The numerous difficulties France has experienced in working out a financial policy, the feeling in this country that more active interest should be shown by the French government and people in paying French obligations to the United States, and the reasonable success of the Dawes plan in Germany have recently lead to suggestions that a similar plan be introduced in France, in order that French finances may be rehabilitated and French credit restored to its former position.

One of the great achievements of the Dawes plan in Germany was the stabilization of the mark, a matter which was vital to the continued existence of the German Republic. Because of the indecision France has shown in the matter of working out a practicable financial policy, the franc has descended now below the lira, and further vacillation will simply mean further reductions in its value. France has not imposed anything like so rigorous a program of taxation as has been the rule in most other countries, and inflation cannot possibly solve the problem.

Whether France will put her house in order except under the stress of external pressure is problematical. There is intense opposition to the capital levy; the income tax is no more favorably received and so serious was the situation not long ago that a dictatorship was seriously proposed.

Possibly a plan, whereby the profits of the French railroads and certain industries could, in part at least, be applied to the payment of French international obligations, might be more acceptable to the French public than any scheme of direct taxation, and stabilization of the franc would be an obvious benefit. The fact that the Dawes plan has proved at least a partial success in Germany removes it from the realm of pure experiment.

Would a Dawes plan for France solve the French financial problem?

YES.

1. The great need of France is to adopt some financial policy. Evasion of obligations cannot go on forever and continuous cabinet crises, most of them over finances, shake the confidence of the French people and injure the credit of the French nation. Something must be done, and as the Dawes plan has shown by the experience in Germany that it is workable, the application of a similar plan in France would end uncertainty and mark a beginning of financial rehabilitation.

2. The bitter opposition of the French people to the capital levy and other forms of direct taxation makes some compromise desirable, and to attempt to raise such sums as are necessary by ordinary methods of indirect taxation would be next to impossible. Such a policy would lead to further inflation, in all probability, and hence to a still lower franc. The imposition of a Dawes plan arrangement in France would be less severely felt by the French people, perhaps, than any other plan that has been suggested.

3. A Dawes plan would tend to place the emphasis in France upon production, and that is perhaps as necessary as anything. France has done an excellent job in rebuilding the devastated regions—although there have not been lacking accusations of graft in this work—but her reaction to post-war conditions has not been as realistic as that of most other countries of Europe. Great Britain long ago abandoned the idea that Germany was going to pay the British debts and imposed a heavy program of taxation. Czechoslovakia emphasized production, and is on an exceptionally sound financial basis. Italy has at least gained international confidence to a greated extent than France. The French wars in Morocco and Syria have distracted her from sound procedure.

4. The French debts ought to be paid. The United States and Great Britain have been lenient with France, almost too lenient. There is no more reason why France should not be held to her obligations than for releasing any other debtor nation. Every nation suffered during the war; France had no unique experience in that respect.

5. Alternative plans might be worse. Beyond a doubt, matters cannot be permitted to drift much farther; and inflation, which seems to be the only plan the French politicians favor, may lead to the disappearance of the franc as it did of the mark.

NO.

1. It is not at all certain that the Dawes plan will prove successful in Germany. All that has been proved thus far is that Germany has been able to survive it. The reparations payments have been made with a great deal of difficulty, and they increase steadily in amount. The German working people are required to put in two hours labor each day for the Dawes plan. There is widespread unemployment and distress in Germany—with more than a million men out of jobs, it surely cannot be said that the Dawes plan has led to any great measure of prosperity. It still remains to be seen whether Germany can keep up to the Dawes program. Perhaps France is watching that with greater eagerness than any other nation, since the bulk of reparations go to her.

2. The Dawes plan, according to many leaders of the working class, practically puts the workers in a position of slavery. They are forced to work over-long hours, at an inadequate wage, and there is no relief in sight during the life-times of persons now employed. The German workers are more docile than the French, and the latter might conceivably revolt against any such proposal. Overthrow of the Republic would not be incredible.

3. The Dawes plan practically mortgages Germany for the benefit of American bankers, in the opinion of many of its Europeon critics. They assert that it is the American banking interests who are likely to be most benefited in the long run, and all Europe has been alarmed by the great penetration of American capital into European industrial enterprises. Europe fears American domination, and the imposition of a Dawes plan in France would tend to make this fear concrete.

4. France ought to resort to an income tax. The French people are well able to pay much higher taxes than they are now paying, and a solution of the French financial problem based on a capital levy, or income tax, or both, would be economically sounder than the Dawes plan arrangement, and probably about as acceptable to the French people, for difficulties would arise no matter what plan were worked out.

5. Peace in the Riff, demobilization of the French army and a generally less warlike attitude on the part of France are prerequisites to any return to peace-time production.

Orders Legitimate, Says Atlas Company

Publishers Object to Reports of Dissatisfaction—Word "Note" in by Mistake.

A letter from the Anderson Publishing Company of Des Moines, Ia., which recently published an atlas for Nodaway County, states that the company carries no orders that were not legally signed. It refers to the meeting held in Hopkins a week or so ago of a number of farmers who repudiated their orders.

The letter follows:

"We were very much surprised when this article was called to our attention. Why a paper of good standing would carry an article of such character without first investigating the truth of the matter, we cannot understand.

"As far as we know or have been able to determine, we carry no orders that were not legally signed. The word 'note' slipped into our first statement through an oversight of our typist, and was not in any way intended as a threat to our customers.

"We take pride in doing a straight and honest business. We publish the best Atlas for the money in the North west, going to great expense to make it as nearly accurate as possible.

"Will you kindly let us hear from you, giving the reason for the stand you have taken."

The information of the Hopkins meeting was secured by the Democrat-Forum and Tribune from several sources. An article about the same meeting appeared in last week's Hopkins Journal, being similar to the article in this paper.

I. B. Goodwin of the Anderson Publishing Co., who has been in the county for the delivery of the atlases, was in Hopkins last Friday and says there was no trouble at all with the orders for the book by the people of Hopkins. Some of the atlases are held at the postoffices over the county but Mr. Goodwin thought that many of them would be taken out soon.

Stubborn Coughs Quickly Stopped This New Way

It is often surprising how the most persistent, hacking cough that not only robs you of strength and sleep, but often leads to more serious trouble, yields quickly to a simple but wonderfully effective treatment.

This treatment is based on the prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs. You take just one teaspoonful at bed time and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it. The prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals soreness and irritation, but it quickly removes the phlegm and congestion which are the real cause of night coughing. So with the cause removed, coughing stops quickly, your sleep undisturbed, and the entire cough condition soon disappears.

Dr. King's New Discovery is for coughs, chest colds, sore throat, hoarseness, bronchitis, spasmodic croup, etc. Fine for children as well as grown-ups—no harmful drugs. Economical, too, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. At all good druggists. Ask for

Energetic Mornings Depend on Breakfast —Start Always with Quaker Oats

HOW you feel all morning depends largely on what you eat for breakfast. Thousands have unenergetic forenoons because of wrong breakfast eating.

To feel right, you must have a well-balanced, complete breakfast ration. At most other meals—lunch and dinner—you get it. But breakfast is a hurried meal, often badly chosen.

Thus Quaker Oats, containing 16% protein, food's great tissue builder; 58% carbohydrate, its great energy element, plus all-important vitamines and the "bulk" that makes laxatives seldom needed, is the dietetic urge of the world today.

It is food that "stands by" you through the morning. Quick Quaker cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. That's faster than plain toast. Don't deny yourself the natural stimulation this rich food offers.

The YELLOW STUB by Ernest Lynn

COPYRIGHT 1926 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

HENRY RAND, 55, a business man, is found murdered in a cheap hotel in Grafton. Police find a woman's handkerchief and the stub of a yellow theater ticket.

JANET RAND, his daughter, breaks her engagement with BARRY COLVIN because of the "disgrace." JIMMY RAND, his son, goes to Springfield where the theater is. The stub is traced to OLGA MAYNARD, a cabaret singer.

Jimmy meets and falls in love with MARY LOWELL. Later he encounters Olga. She faints at hearing police want her for murder. Mary, out with SAMUEL CHURCH, a wealthy lawyer, sees Jimmy lift Olga into a taxi and misunderstands.

Olga tells police the stub might have come into possession of a man who "picked her up" two nights before the murder. Jimmy receives mysterious warnings to leave Springfield and later is attacked by two men, but escapes.

With Jimmy and Mary estranged, Church gets Mary's promise to marry him. Jimmy and Olga, out one night, see a man they both recognize—she as the man who got the stub, he as one of his assailants. The man escapes, but they identify him by his police picture as IKE JENSEN.

Church, motoring with Mary, runs over a dog. His heartlessness causes her to break their engagement. Mary writes Jimmy a letter, telling him about it. The office boy sticks it in his pocket and forgets it.

Barry Colvin, without Jimmy's knowledge, seeks out Mary Lowell and tells her who Olga Maynard is. Late that night Jimmy gets a phone call from Olga, saying she has found Ike Jensen. Her voice ends in a gasping cry. Then there is silence.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLI.

Jimmy jiggled the receiver hook in desperation, but the sound that came to his ear was the tranquil "Number please" of Central.

"God!" he cried, putting the phone away from him. "What happened to her? What happened?"

He grabbed the phone again and asked for police headquarters. "And for God's sake, hurry!"

He got hold of O'Day, then, and told him: "Get as fast as you can to Olga Maynard's apartment." He gave O'Day the address. "Ike Jensen's been there. I think he's killed her. I'm starting out right away."

Then he ran up the stairs, taking three at a time, and madly grabbed at his hat and overcoat. . . . .

* * *

All during that day at the office Mary Lowell had sat expectantly at her typewriter, starting eagerly every time the telephone rang. But the call she waited for did not come.

She was the first to greet the letter carrier on each of his frequent rounds. But there was no mail for her.

"Why," she asked herself time and again, "why doesn't he answer?"

She pondered on the variability of her moods. Yesterday Barry Colvin had been to see her and what he told her had lifted her magically out of the depression into which she had lately settled.

And today. . . . To come to work so cheerful, so expectant, and to hear—nothing. It was more than she could bear.

Mr. Hilton stopped once in the midst of dictation and looked at her very sharply.

"You're tired, Miss Lowell," he said gently. "I wish you would take a couple of days off. Do you good."

Mary's mother, who since the breaking off with Sam Church wore a perpetually a grieved expression, met her at the door with sharp complaints about being late and "dinner never will be ready if you don't hurry."

In fact, Mary's mother found it very easy to find fault these days. There been many attempts on her part to persuade Mary to reconsider her decision about Church, but they were futile.

"Oh, dear," Mrs. Lowell sighed as she moved heavily about the kitchen, getting in the way while Mary did all the work, "I get so discouraged. I could lie right down and sleep for two days, I'm so tired."

Mary made no answer; she was too busy cooking.

"I'm not at all well," Mrs. Lowell continued. "The doctor told me what I needed was a complete rest and a change."

(Which was not at all what the doctor had told her. What he had said was that she wanted a rest and a change. He hadn't said she needed it.)

Mrs. Lowell sighed deeply. "But I suppose I'll never get it. I suppose I'll end my days in drudgery." Her drudgery consisted largely in watching Mary do all the important housework. Occasionally Mrs. Lowell knitted, and dusted a few pictures, and prepared a salad.

"Please, mother," Mary begged.

"I simply never imagined anyone could be so foolish," Mrs. Lowell went on.

And Mary, her mind too troubled to pay much attention, went on with the preparation of dinner. . . .

She hardly touched her food, however, and when the dishes were washed and put away she gave the excuse of a headache to retire to her room.

As she sat on her bed, in utter dejection, she wondered if the cutting remarks she had made to Jimmy when last they met had opened a breach that was irreparable.

"But I wrote him," she said. "I told him everything. I did all I could. Why didn't he answer?"

She was hurt, deeply hurt.

"He simply doesn't care any more," she told herself.

She sat before her mirror and watched her reflected face. "Oh, Jim," she cried, "if you only knew how much I loved you. You're—you're breaking my heart."

The receiver was still off the hook. "What's happened to her?" he gasped.

Her face dropped slowly down on her arm.

She sat that way a long time, just how long she did not know, but her mother's complaining voice, rising on a note of querulousness, broke into her thoughts.

"Mary, if you have such a headache, why don't you go to bed? Your light is keeping me from going to sleep."

Without answering, Mary roused herself and put out the light. She undressed in the dark and then got into bed.

But she lay there sleepless, dampening her pillow with tears. . . . Hours passed, but they failed to bring her sleep. . . . .

How was she to know that the letter she had written to Jimmy Rand was at that moment lining the pocket of Paul, the admirable office boy?

* * *

At that moment Jimmy Rand was dashing madly up the hall steps leading to Olga Maynard's apartment.

The door was standing half open; the rooms within were in silent darkness.

He fumbled, then switched on a light, and the telephone met his eyes. The receiver was still off the hook. "What's happened to her?" he gasped. "God! Where is she?"

He tramped through the small apartment—just two rooms and a kitchenet—turning on lights and exploring every corner, every closet.

But there was no Olga—no trace, even, of her.

A tramp of feet coming up the stairs. And then a squad of uniformed men, led by Lieutenant O'Day, came into the room.

"She's gone, Lieutenant," Jimmy waved his hand around. "She's gone." He groped for words and found none, and sank desparingly into a chair.

O'Day's voice was professionally crisp. "They didn't kill her, then. Any sign of a struggle? Any evidence that they hurt her?"

"Nothing."

"Well, I'll take a look around. Tell me what you know first. What happened?"

Jimmy, in a high state of excitement, told him. "She phoned me. She said, 'I've found Jensen. He's in the house across the street.' Then she said, 'Oh!'—as if someone had grabbed her or something. A sort of gasping cry."

"And that was all?"

"That was all. I called you up right afterward."

O'Day turned to the men who had come with him. "You men go outside. Run across the street to the house opposite this and see what you can find out. You know Jensen's description. See if he has been rooming there.

"Wait a minute. If you don't get anything there, go next door—go to every house in the block. Wake 'em all up. If Jensen went into any house on this street we're going to find out about it."

"That's all." He turned to Jimmy. "Now I'm going to look around myself."

He went first to the telephone, picked it up, then set it back again on the table and stepped back and studied it.

"Tell me," he said to Jimmy, "how you found this place when you came in. Where was the phone—right where I picked it up?"

"Yes. The receiver was off the hook. I put it back."

"Any lights on?"

"No, all the lights were out."

"This rug here that's mussed up and wrinkled. Was it like that when you came in?"

Jimmy hadn't noticed the rug. "I don't know, Lieutenant. I suppose so. I didn't touch it."

O'Day quietly stroked his chin, stood with his feet planted wide apart and studied a while in silence.

"What do you think happened, Lieutenant?" Jimmy had risen from his chair, and stood facing O'Day.

"Don't bother me now, lad. Let me think." He smiled apologetically at his curtness. "I'm not one of these fancy Sherlock Holmes detectives," he explained. "I'm a little slow at getting my mind to work. I have to have time. I want to see this thing first, just as you saw it when you came in."

He walked to the door and stood on the threshold, his eyes wandering around the room and then through the hallway.

"This door was open?" he asked.

"Yes. I came right in."

"And all the lights were out, you say?"

Jimmy nooded.

"Uh-huh." O'Day turned abruptly away and walked into the next room, exploring. He shook his head slowly. "I wonder," he said doubtfully, "I wonder if—" and then he broke off and resumed his search.

Quite abruptly he came to a pause in front of the mantel above the gas grate. His hand reached up and picked up a picture that way lying, face down, on the shelf.

He frowned as he looked at it. He glanced around at Jimmy, who, quite oblivious of O'Days movements, was standing before a window, his hands clasped behind his back, looking out into the street.

O'Day turned back to the picture. A comprehensive light came into his eyes.

"Mother of heaven!" he breathed.

Then he unfastened some buttons on his coat and stuck the picture into his breast pocket.

TWO HOMES MADE HAPPY

By Women Who Used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I think it is the most wonderful medicine I ever tried," is the statement made by Mrs. Goldie Shoup of May View, Illinois. She declares that after taking the Compound she is in better health than before.

Mrs. J. Storms of 29 Lane Street, Paterson, N. J., writes: "I can not speak too highly of your medicine and I recommend it to all my friends."

These statements were taken from two enthusiastic letters which tell of the help that has been received from using the Vegetable Compound. Both Mrs. Shoup and Mrs. Storms were in a run-down condition which caused them much unhappiness. When women are suffering from lack of strength and from weakness, their own life and that of their family is affected. When they feel well and strong and are able to do their housework easily, happy homes are the result.

Thousands of testimonial letters have been received from women in different walks of life, stating that the Compound has helped them.

KNABB SCHOOL

Several of our pupils have been out on account of bad colds and sickness in the past few weeks.

Our enrollment has decreased to 20 since some of our pupils moved away. Only one pupil has entered our school during the moving season. Irvin Killam entered on March 2. He is in the eighth grade, making Knabb school's the only eighth grade pupil.

The second grade class finished their fifth reading book last week and started in their sixth book for this year.

And old time spelling and ciphering match will be held at the Knabb school house on Friday evening, March 19 at 7:30 p. m. A short musical program will precede the spelling and ciphering. Don't forget to brush up your spelling for Friday evening and come help us enjoy the evening.

Living Expenses on Farm Important Item Not Generally Shown When Estimating Returns

Besides cash, the farm yields another form of income, that does not show on the balance sheet, made up of food, fuel and house rent, says C. B. Sherman in the American Bankers Association Journal. These items represent an appreciable part of the cost of living of the farm family, but because they are difficult to measure in dollars and cents their true value is likely to be unrecognized by farmers.

"Studies of the part the farm contributes to the family living by the United States Department of Agriculture, including more than 7,000 farms well scattered over the United States and representing varying farming conditions, show that the value of the part of the family living obtained from the farm is roughly one-ninth of the farm receipts and one-third of the farm income," this writer says. "In prosperous years of agriculture, the value of the family-living-from-the-farm was only about one-fifth as much as the farm as the farm income; but in the years of depression, it was fully one-third as much.

"In the case of the small farm this unledgered income is often as important as the cash income. It is this combination of family home and living that permits a man to continue farming year after year when his money return is small or even takes the form of a deficit. The value of the family-living-from-the-farm varied with different localities from $200 to $800. As a general proposition the value of the family living was more for the large farms than for the small farms. An increase in the size of the family was usually accompanied by an increase in the average value of the family-living from the farm.

"For all of the farm records included in this study, the value of the family-living-from-the-farm was approximately one-ninth as much as the farm receipts, with variations from less than one-twentieth in a few localities with large farms and large capitalization or with highly specialized types of farming, to more than one-fifth in some localities with small farms and small capitalization or with little specialization as to type of farming.

"More or less farm labor was performed by members of the family, but in no case did the value of the labor equal the value of the family-living-from-the-farm. The farm income plus the unpaid family labor more nearly represents the amount available from the farm business for owner-farmers and their families to spend and to save than does any other income usually discussed. The department terms it the 'family income.' It sometimes represented an increase of 20 per cent or more over the farm income.

"The family-living-from-the-farm is much larger relative to the farm receipts, the farm income, the family income, and the labor income, in years of general depression than in years of prosperity. Therefore, the family-living-from-the-farm may well be looked upon as a form of insurance, and the Department believes that it is wisdom on the part of all who are in a position to advise farmers to urge them to produce food supplies for the farm family to the greatest practicable extent."

FARM GLIMPSES

By BILLY TILSON

George Sexton, northeast of Burlington Junction, has his summer's wood hauled up and is waiting for the wood saw man to get it ready for the stove.

Luther Peery, northeast of Burlington Junction, had a force of men hauling up wood yesterday and the man with the power saw will finish the work today.

John Finnell, who has been living on the Fred Griffey farm, was moving his hog houses yesterday to the Chas. Finnell farm, southeast of Burlington Junction, having leased that farm for a term of years.

William Hinton and wife, east of Pickering, were Maryville visitors yesterday.

J. F. Ed and George Hackett of the Burlington Junction neighborhood were transacting business in Maryville yesterday. They have leased their tract of land northeast of the city to Lawrence Perdue and son for the year.

Road dragging was going on yesterday in the Burlington Junction district on most all the main roads and they were smoothing down in good shape. Frank Miller, who is doing the dragging from Wilcox to the Junction, is putting that road in fine condition for travel.

We stopped at the home of Ed Hornbuckle, northeast of Burlington Junction yesterday and while we found Ed suffering with the pangs of rheumatism and had to go about on crutches that sunshine disposition that Ed always carries was still clinging to him.

Tony Shaeffer of Conception Junction, was transacting business in the city yesterday.

Charles Groves, north of Graham, was a Maryville visitor yesterday. Mr. Groves, who was interested in the fine cattle and hog business for years, is giving part of his attention to the chicken business and is making a success. Last Friday he relieved his large incubators of 2400 young chicks and says he finds a ready market for them. We have made a date with Charley to be held when the first frys are ready.

Mitt Wilson, southeast of Ravenwood, bought a team at the Hosmer sale Saturday. Mitt says he is now ready for spring work to commence.

P. J. and Ralph Farrens of Clearmont were in the city yesterday. They were looking after their farm northeast of Maryville.

Ed Vanpelt, northeast of Burlington Junction, lost a valuable milk cow Sunday night with the blackleg, and has two others affected. Others in the same neighborhood have had a loss with the same malady.

Cleo Mitchell of the Workman Chapel neighborhood has ninety head of young pigs that are doing fine. Mr. Mitchell has a load of hogs that will soon be ready for the market. He is also feeding a load of calves and says his stock of all kinds have done well this winter.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, March 16.—Grain prices closed lower on the Chicago Board of Trade today.

Wheat closed from 5-8 to 2 cents lower. The bearish trend of the Chicago market is attributed directly to the foreign recessions. Liverpool closed 1¼ cents under yesterday's final figures.

There was practically no exporting today from the North American seaboard. Local traders utilized the bulge to unload, resulting in the slump which lasted until the close.

Corn closed lower in all deliveries. Trading was exceedingly inactive.

Oats closed off in all deliveries. There was practically no trade today.

Provisions closed lower.

State Teachers College Bearcats Defeat Pride of San Francisco in National Tourney Game Last Night

The State Teachers College Bearcats won their way into the second round of the National A. A. U. Basketball Tournament by defeating the Young Men's Institute, the pride of San Francisco, 41 to 23. The game was played last night and this morning. Scheduled to start at 10 o'clock, it did not begin until about 11:30 and it was almost 1 o'clock before Referee Fred Williams blew his final whistle.

The Bearcats got away to a flying start, and led their California opponents all the way. Those who saw the game say that never before have Coach H. Frank Lawrence's men been so "hot." Basket after basket fell from all angles of the court.

At the end of the first half, the score stood 24 to 8. Shortly before this juncture, Maryville had led, 24 to 4, but two field goals by Harrigan, Y. M. I. center, gave the San Franciscans 8 points at the end of the first semester.

Leon Ungles, Maryville forward, was high-point man for the Bearcats. Eight times he looped the sphere through the wicket from the field, and once he counted from the free throw line. edges, who was substituted for Paul Burks after about 7 minutes of play in the first half, made seven field goals and one charity toss.

Coach Lawrence used seven men in the game. Aldrich was substituted for Ungles in the second half. O'Banion was the only man who made the trip and did not play last night.

Six Rooters From Here.

Weber McMillen, Joab Nicholas, Vodre Willoughby, Vernon Goslee, Burdett Yeo, and Floyd Moore went from Maryville to see the Bearcats play. They say that Berst and Blomfield played a whirlwind game. The Red Head was most spectacular in his floor play, while Blomfield drew round after round of applause for his backboard play of rebounds. Several times he leaped into the air to intereept Y. M. I. shots which seemed certain of settling into the basket.

The Y. M. I. staged a rally at the start of the second period to run up the count to 24 to 13, but never was the Coast five dangerous although the play of its star guard, Dal Bon, elicited admiration from the spectators This boy covered a wide range and possessed the happy knack of breaking up the Maryville offense but his work went for naught as the Teachers continued piling upon an oversized score.

Play Schooleys Tomorrow.

Tomorrow afternoon or night the Bearcats will meet the Schooleys of Kansas City. The locals were victorious over the Stationers in a game at Maryville several weeks ago, and on this record local fans base their hope that the Green and White will advance into the third round of the tournament.

Should the Bearcats win two more games, they will likely be pitted against the Kansas City Athletic Club in the semi-final round.

Eight Games Yesterday.

Eight games were played in the tourney yesterday. Yankton College of Yankton, S. Dak., won from the Yeager team of Denver, 36 to 29.

The Yankton cagers found the Yeager defense a bit puzzling at the start of their first round of battle and trailed the major part of the first half, but once able to penetrate deep into Denver territory they made the most of their shots count.

This was an interesting tussle, with Yankton holding a slight margin at the end of the first half, 18 to 16.

Yankton's superior speed had much to do with the result of the contest, the unflagging antics of the Dakotans eventually wearing down the cagers from Denver and several shifts in the Booster line-up proved unavailing in the second half.

N. Dak. Aggies Win, 17-13.

A departure from the free scoring battles was evident in the struggle between the North Dakota Aggies and the Newton A. C., won by the former with little to spare. Neither team could present any consistent shooters nor was either offense calculated to arouse the crowd but the guarding was zealous and close and the play fairly fast. The final score was 17 to 13.

Tonight's First Round Games.

7 o'clock—Monon A. C., Indianapolis, Ind., vs. Baker U., Baldwin, Kan.

8 o'clock — Pittsburg Teachers, Pittsburg, Kan., vs. Fairmont College, Wichita, Kan.

9 o'clock—Ke-Nash-A, Kenosha, Wis., vs. Pacific Coast, Long Beach, Calif.

10 o'clock — Nebraska State Teachers, Peru, Neb., vs. South Side Turners, Indianapolis, Ind.

The Schooleys surprised basketball fans by winning over St. Phillips Academy of Chicago, 41 to 27. At the beginning of the game it seemed that the quintet which had downed the St. Joseph Hillyards earlier in the season would trim the Kansas City champions, but a spurt by the Schooleys gave them a lead and the confidence to increase it.

Led by the brilliant shooting of Jimmy Loveless the Kansas State Teachers from Emporia ran up an impressive score over the Red Crown quintet of Wood River, Ill., to win, 55 to 32. The first half ended with the Kansans holding an 8-point margin but in the last period Loveless, abetted by Hoover, pecked away at the Red Crown basket with such amazing regularity that easterners were greatly discouraged.

This was a game marked by loose guarding with fast floor play and stellar offensive tactics featuring. More than once the opposing attacks swooped down upon the goal to mount it in most approved fashion.

Loveless Leads Scorers.

Loveless, with his twelve field goals led the marksmen for the first day's play and set a record that will be hard to equal. The Emporia captain had goals in either mitt and they tumbled upon each others' heels in their eagerness to show before the crowd. Hoover's total was seven, respectable in itself.

The Hillyards of St. Joseph, Mo., a team which is picked to battle through to a late round in the tournament, displayed a brilliant attack in defeating the Clark The Hatter five, Kansas City champions, 55 to 14.

The opposition which was expected from Clark the Hatter proved as disappointing as damp powder and, after giving the St. Joseph cagers a battle for the first ten minutes, the Kansas City quintet folded entirely.

Many Hillyard Substitutes.

Hillyard substitutes finished the rout, in particular one Hewitt, whose dazzling thrusts at the basket became so frequent even the Hatter boys had to stand by for attention.

The Hillyards led at the first half 21 to 10, finishing with only Starbuck as a regular. Rody wasn't in uniform and Mosby sat on the sidelines. Wulf and DeBernardi went out early and re-entered with three or four minutes remaining of the last period.

The Ivanhoe De Molays made a brilliant effort to unseat Washburn College, national champions. With 5 minutes of the second half of their game played, the score stood 15 to 15. It was then that the Ichabods started their scoring spree, which ended in a 39 to 20 victory.

K. C. A. C., Wins 32-23 Game.

The Kansas City Athletic Club team won from the Pratt Book Store Five of Denver, 32 to 23. The game was not as close as the score indicates. Blue Diamonds substitutes were used frequently, and the Kansas City team fought just hard enough to win.

Tus Ackerman played a brilliant game for the victors. He made six field baskets and cavorted untiringly in his floor play.

Some 3000 persons witnessed the games last night. The majority of these spectators were still in their seats when the Maryville-Y. M. I. game ended early this morning.

Brookhart May Oppose Cummins

Wants The Contest Settled Before April 27, Filing Time In Iowa.

Washington, March 16.—Smith Wildman Brookhart, senator from Iowa, who lives up to his name, so his foes say, is not nearly so wild these days. For the senate is preparing to unseat him and make Daniel F. Steek, his Democratic opponent in the 1924 election, senator instead.

Senator Brookhart said today he intended to fight to the limit for his seat. But few of Brookhart's friends share this confidence. For the Democrats, with a handful of exceptions and nearly all of the G. O. P. regulars are said to be lined up against Brookhart.

Brookhart wants the contest settled before April 27, when the time for filing for senator for the seat now held by Senator Albert Cummins will close. He has made it known that if unseated by the senate he will get in the race against Cummins. Naturally Senator Cummins wants him seated so he won't oppose him, Cummins having two strong opponents in the field already. Brookhart would be almost sure to win under the circumstances. If the contest should not be decided by April 27, Brookhart may resign to be eligible to run for the other seat.

Meanwhile Brookhart hasn't been nearly so wild as he used to be. He has voted with the administration several times. For the time he is cultivating the Old Guard and the administration—not fighting it.

Revive Rumors of Rail Merger After Visit

Report Chicago & Alton, M. K. & T. and Kansas City Southern Will Consolidate Into One System

Mexico, Mo., March 16.—Rumors of a merger between the Chicago and Alton, Missouri, Kansas and Texas, and the Kansas City Southern railroads has been revived here following the recent visit of President W. G. Beird of the Chicago and Alton Railroad.

Officials from these railroads made a special trip over the western division as far as here, and then moved to Jefferson City over the Cedar City branch, returning here later.

This makes the second inspection that the Missouri, Kansas and Texas officials have made of the Chicago Alton line. Nothing came of the first tour and its object was never explained.

No Chance of Repeal, Says Dry Candidate

H. P. Faris of Clinton Says Prohibitionists Need Only 13 Legislatures.

Clinton, Mo., March 16.—Unfavorable results of the straw vote on prohibition do not distress H. P. Faris, for more than 30 years an active worker for the drys, who was the Prohibition party nominee for President There is no possibility of ever repealing the Eighteenth amendment, he said in a statement here.

"The drys will only have to hold one House of the State Legislatures in 13 states to prevent a repeal, so that even the most vociferous wet no longer claims a possibility of repealing that amendment," he said.

"The one-half of one per cent alcoholic content, provided for in the Volstead law is the very percentage which the wets had inserted in the old license law, in order to prevent unlicensed dealers and manufacturers from interfering, and hence the wets have no 'kick' coming as to what percentage."

He asserts that the great majority of all bootleggers are of foreign birth, even as were the great majority of the liquor dealers, licensed and unlicensed, under the old regime.

"Why expect distiller Mellon to inforce a dry law?" he says. "Why leave this law under the Treasury Department? Why is it not put under the Attorney-General and the law department, where it naturally belongs?

"If the publis press will be as vigilant in denouncing the bootlegger and his patron as it was in denouncing the German sympathizer during the World War, we would very soon eliminate this nefarious treasonmonger and all his patrons and sympathizers, for they are a worse menace to our country and its constitution than the friends of the Central powers ever were.

"Our nation was founded as a Christian nation and by decision of our Supreme Court it has been declared such, and we owe it to the world to keep it in all its laws and works, truly Christian and every one with a grain of sense knows that the demands of the wets are all anti-Christian and hence should receive naught but condemnation and rejection by our people and press."

Thousand of Pets Die in Blaze in New York

Canary Birds, Monkeys, Parrots and Other Animals Perish While Firemen Seek To Penetrate Building.

New York, March 16. (United Press)—Five thousand canary birds, 40 monkeys and many parrots and other pets died in a fire yesterday at Barton's House of pets, Number 45, Cortlandt street.

Overcome by smoke and many burned to death outright, the birds and animals died while firemen sought unavailingly to penetrate the building and answer the shrieks of monkeys and parrots that set up a bedlam.

When the fire was out and the smoke cleared from the building, firemen found ten monkeys huddled sorrowfully over the bodies of forty dead companions, hundreds of cages with the lifeless bodies of birds lying in them and many more pets burned completely to ashes.

Piercing wails from a pair of wildcats, apparently first to sense the fire, attracted attention of a policeman who sought out the building. As he drew nearer parrots and monkeys began to scream, two hundred puppies started to howl and the voices of the animal kingdom were mingled in an unearthly noise.

When firemen arrived they were able to save the two hundred puppies on the third floor of the building. The dogs seemed less affected by smoke than any other animals.

Windows were then broken open where the young animals were kept. Each family of kittens huddled together, terrified, but many were saved. Firemen and attendants moved among them, liberating such as they could.

Two wildcat cubs were found alive. A pair of boa constrictors on the second floor survived the fire but were found lashing about and adding to the terrors of cockatoos and bullfinches which were in cages nearby.

Other animals to survive though terrified were four chimpanzees, a thousand chickens and as many rabbits, brought in for the Easter trade.

For the firemen it was a nervewrecking task to save the animals. Slipping through the darkness without knowledge of what the store contained, more than one fireman was startled when, after seeing the boa constrictors, he noticed hose lines thrashing around him in snaky fashion.
